Sub-Saharan Africa, India and UAE are growing markets and have enormous business potential for technology companies located in the Central Baltic region, especially in the fields of Viable Citizen Solutions and Intelligent Transportation Systems. At the same time, they are complicated markets to enter. Cross-border cooperation provides a framework to face market entry challenges jointly. Sharing the costs of activities such as marketing, exporting competence building and the application of export support tools among SME business networks, can facilitate the process.

eMesai project is developing a sustainable cross-border cooperation model to increase export in the target markets by coordinating:

- cross-company marketing to the foreign markets in question.
- mentoring among SME-s
- systematic SHARING of the existing business leads and know-how among CB SME-s.

eMesai supports at least 50 SME-s export and achieves at least 9 new sales in target markets.
